Heritage Estate decision to stay

THE Heritage Estate decision will not be reversed even if there is a change of government at the next Federal Election.

The Shadow Minister for Climate Change Environment and Water, Greg Hunt, met with landowners and community groups on site yesterday.

Mr Hunt said that after speaking to landowners the Opposition would now be turning its efforts towards getting just and proper compensation.

He said the decision made by the Rudd Government not to approve the housing development had trapped the landowners, and the process to reverse the decision would take too long.

Mr Hunt said that if the Coalition were in power and if it had ruled Heritage Estate out, it would not have left the residents in the predicament they are now.

He said if the government rated the land as being so environmentally important it should buy it and offer it to the Jervis Bay National Park.

Mr Hunt was also taken to Narang Road, North Nowra to inspect one of the options for the link road, which the Federal Government had declared unacceptable.

Mr Hunt said compromises like land offsets that would see the Bomaderry Creek Regional Park substantially increased and funds set aside to protect the rare species in the area, could always be found.
